WM. BREIDERT OF FRANKFORT HOME FROM EUROPE AFTER HONORABLE DISCHARGE

Wm. Breidert, honorably discharged from the army, returned to Frankfort Friday, July 13 after spending a year in the service and six months overseas. Breidert wears the combat Infantrymen's badge, good conduct ribbon and the European theatre badge with two battle stars. He returned by the northern route, from Czechoslovakia, traveling by truck, train and ship to Glasgow where he boarded a C54 for the homeward flight, landing at LaGuardia Field after having supper in Iceland and breakfast in Newfoundland. There were 30 men aboard and a crew of six. Breidert said the trip was a most enjoyable one, flying most of the time at an altitude of 8,000 feet at night and never completely losing sight of the midnight sun.

Stationed with the 79th Infantry Division, Breidert also served as an interpreter since he speaks German fluently. He says the Germans for the most part welcomed the United States soldiers and treated them well. At the time of his departure Breidert said the farmers were busy in the fields and reconstruction was under way in many of the larger cities. Travel was slow because of the complete destruction of all rail centers. Doughnuts and coffee served by the Red Cross helped break the monotony of tiresome waits along the route. Visits at Paris and London were brief but interesting Breidert said.

Young Breidert whose father died while he was overseas, is at home with his mother and after a short rest he plans to resume his work as carpenter.

Another Frankfort lad returned home at the same time Friday. He is Delbert Seemann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Seemann. Pfc. Seemann returned on the ship "Marine Devil" which docked at Boston. He had been stationed in Germany with the Field Artillery for the past few months and will report at Camp Grant at the end of his 30 day furlough.

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead, commonly known as the Goblin, is the only white horse ever foaled on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He resembles his great grandsire, a wild stallion known as the Albino. One day Goblin wanders into a mountain valley and barely escapes death from his grandsire's slashing hoofs. When his wounds heal, his 12-year-old owner, Ken McLaughlin, begins to train him. Although difficult to handle, Goblin can run with astonishing speed and endurance. In a trial he covers a half mile in 47 seconds. He escaped gelding by an accident. Charley Sargent, millionaire horse breeder, is enthusiastic about Goblin's possibilities.

CHAPTER XV

Rob conceded that Thunderhead had been promoted. Since the speed he had shown that afternoon, he would be guarded, cherished, watched over like the crown prince.

Ken could hardly believe it. "Do you mean you'll keep him in this winter, dad? And—and—feed him oats—and hay?"

"With my own fair hands! What's more I'll ride him and continue his training whenever I have time. That's the least I can do if he's going to put wooden fences on the ranch and buy a furnace for us! What do you think, Nell?"

He had seen her sitting there, silent and white, after the hard look he had given her.

She looked up as he spoke to her. His face was genial and smiling. First the blow—then the smile—

But she didn't answer for a moment and Ken was impatient. "Mother!" he exclaimed.

"Yes," she said. "By all means! Keep him in."

When Nell asked Rob, she made it very casual. She was brushing her hair for the night. "By the way, Rob—did you see Bellamy?"

"Yes."

"What about the sheep?"

"It's O.K."

"Thank Heaven! Will he be able to pay us the first half before Howard leaves?"

"No, he can't do that. He has to wait until he sells his lambs."

"What'll we do? We have to have that eight hundred by September tenth."

Rob had his back to her, standing before his chiffonier. There was something very rigid about his body—the legs braced apart a little, head back.

"I'll take some horses down to the Denver auction this next week."

Nell made no comment. She calculated rapidly. Every summer he had half a dozen or so "scrubs" to sell at any price he could get—horses who were too small, or poorly developed, or with some defect. Sometimes he sold them to Williams, a horse buyer who went around to ranches with his own truck; or at one of the near-by auctions. Wherever he sold them, he would be lucky to get fifty dollars apiece for them. There were also the two old brood mares to be sold. Altogether, that would make, perhaps, four hundred dollars. What else would he sell to make up the difference?

There had been many arguments between herself and Rob on the subject of providing for their current needs by sales of horses—no matter at what sacrifice. He always refused to do it. "What? Sell a horse that's worth fifteen hundred dollars for fifty? Not if I was starving."

"But Rob—how many sales of that sort do you get?"

"I've had some—We've lived, haven't we?"

"Yes—four horses four years ago at seven hundred dollars a piece. Then, none the next year. Then one for two thousand—I admit that was a good sale—But you must have thirty or forty horses just waiting for one of those sales—and they only come once in a blue moon—When we need the money, you might as well sell half a dozen for anything—you would still have enough fine horses for any sort of deal that came along."

"I'd rather sell one for two thousand than twenty horses at a hundred dollars a head, or forty horses at fifty."

Such remarks as these were unanswerable.

But he wasn't talking like that now. Nell glanced at him. Did he mean that he would take some of his fine stuff down to the Denver auction and let it go cheap?

As he turned she saw his face, weary and harassed. He went into the small adjoining bedroom where he kept his boots and clothes.

They talked back and forth through the open door while she washed her face in oil and carefully dried it.

"Wasn't it exciting about Thunderhead?" she asked.

"Yep."

"You didn't see the best of it," she said. "I wish you had."

She could hear him polishing his shoes before he put them away.

"Oh, he can run!" he said. "He's fast, if he ever gets the kinks ironed out of him—Don't wait for me—I'm going to smoke a pipe before I turn in."

"You don't seem to take much stock in him, Rob."

"No, I don't."

After a short silence, Nell said, "Neither do I. It just seems unlikely, somehow, that he'll pan out."

"Shall we take Skippy to the auction with us?" yelled Howard, busily brushing and grooming Sultan, the big blood-bay who, his father said, was worth a good five hundred dollars to anyone that wanted a well-trained heavy hunter.

"I should say not!" yelled Rob from the other corral where he was giving Injun the work-out he had promised Nell the horse should have every day. "Do you want to disgrace me? What sort of horse-breeder would raise an animal like that?"

There was the sound of galloping. Three beautiful sorrel mares, Taffy, A-Honey, and Russet came cantering down the pasture toward the corral with Ken, mounted on Thunderhead, behind them.

Howard hastened to open the gates, the mares trotted in, and Ken slid off his horse.

"That's all, dad," he yelled.

"They're all here. Thirteen of 'em." "All right. Unsaddle your horse. You can wipe him off, but don't take all day. I want you to help Howard groom those others."

The gate of the corral where Rob was exercising Injun was carefully opened. Nell entered and stood watching. She was dressed in a summer suit of light blue linen and a tan straw hat with a round brim that curved off her face. It was nearly the color of the tawny bang that gleamed on her forehead. With her hands thrust into the pockets of her jacket and her small feet in their sturdy flat shoes planted in the loose soil, she had her little girl look.

"You're taking Sultan?" she asked.

"And Smoky and Blue." She noticed them in the string that Howard and Ken were grooming. They were blue roans—a pair of beauties, with sweeping tails and gentle eyes, just too small for Army or polo, but well broken and beautifully matched. Nell had always thought of them as belonging to two little girls, sisters, who would love them and saddle and groom them themselves.

"And Taffy, and A-Honey and Russet," said Rob, turning Injun and riding him down along the fence again.

Nell's question was answered. Rob was going to do the thing he had always vowed he would never do—throw away some of his best stuff to meet an urgent need of the moment.

Injun turned and came back. Rob's face was hard as nails. Nell hated to look at it. She could see the real suffering underneath.

"I'd have saved Sultan for the army sale—he'd have been certain for a hundred and eighty-five dollars—except for that scar on his chest. Damn the barbed wire!"

As if Injun felt the passion and violence of his master he began to crouch and lunge. Rob turned him sharply away from Nell and forced him to resume his measured pacing up and down the corral fence. When he reached Nell again he paused and said more calmly, "You don't often see such horses as these in this country."

"I know you don't," said Nell sadly.

"There won't be anything at the auction to touch them!"

"I don't doubt it."

"Mother!" yelled Howard from the other corral, "Don't you think we ought to take Skippy to the auction and sell her?"

"Sell her!" scoffed Rob, "sell Skippy! The boy must be out of his mind!"

Nell laughed. "Someone might buy her. A child could ride her."

The thirteen horses were ready for loading, crowded into the small corral which opened into the chute. It was always a difficult business,

Nell stood near by, watching. It depressed her. She didn't mind the ancient brood mares and the scrubs, but Sultan! And the three sorrel mares! And the two blues!

"Skippy might help," said Nell, "and you could squeeze her in—she's so small they wouldn't know she was there."

"Ken, come here!" yelled his father.

He put Ken on Skippy, placed her in advance of all the others and told the boy to ride her through the chute and up the ramp. As Ken did so, Rob and Howard forced the others horses after them.

Skippy led the procession triumphantly but laid her ears back when she found herself penned into a corner of the truck with no room to kick and no oats.

"Just promise not to bring Skippy back, even if you have to give her away," called Nell as they closed the truck.

She walked up onto the hill to see the last of them. Kim and Chaps sat down beside her and watched too. She thought she saw a hand waving just before the truck went around the curve. Then it was gone and she hurried indoors.

The old brood mares sold immediately for forty dollars apiece after it was ascertained that each one carried a foal.

"Better than the coyotes," muttered Rob.

There was more bidding for the scrubs. They were ridden around and around the ring by the ring boys, while whips cracked and the raucous voice of the auctioneer rattled as fast as the tobacco sellers on the radio.

The scrubs were auctioned off for an average of forty-five dollars each.

Sultan was led in.

"My Gosh! Look at that horse!" exclaimed the auctioneer. The hammer crashed. "Who'll bid a hundred for him? A hundred! A hundred! Who'll bid a hundred?"

As he poured out his line, the ring boy made a leap for Sultan's back. Sultan reared and plunged away, tore loose from the rope, and went galloping around the ring. Three boys pursued him, cornered him, got his rope; he still fought them, the whips cracked, he lashed with his heels, and the auctioneer, not looking at him, was crying, "Who'll bid a hundred? Am I bid a hundred?"

"Seventy-five," bid a heavy-set farmer.

"Seventy-six!" bid the man in the bowler hat.

The farmer bid "Eighty." The man in the bowler hat bid "Eighty-one."

Sultan was sold to the farmer for ninety dollars.

The farmer was at Sultan's side as Ken slid off him. He was pleased with his buy.

"That's what I call a real horse. He'll do me as well as a Farmall would, and without gasoline too." He chuckled and ran his hand over the horse's withers.

"Are you going to use him to plow?"

The farmer looked at him in astonishment. "I sure am. What do you s'pose I'm payin' ninety dollars for?"

"He's a hunter," exclaimed Ken desperately. "A heavy hunter."

"Hunter," repeated the farmer. "Hunt what?"

"Foxes."

"Foxes! You mean coyotes? I hunt plenty of coyotes—but I hunt them with a Ford and a couple of greyhounds. I won't need a plug for that. What do you call him?"

"Sultan."

The ring boy led the horse away and the farmer followed. Ken stood, looking after them miserably.

"That's a good horse, Sonny."

Ken looked up. The tall man with the bowler hat stood beside him. He had a red face and a sharp nose.

"Any more where he came from?" he asked.

"Yes," said Ken sullenly. "A lot more."

"Whose horses are they?"

"My father's. Captain McLaughlin." Ken walked back to Howard.

When the auction was over the man in the bowler hat had bought Smoky, Blue, Taffy, A-Honey and Russet for prices ranging from sixty-five to ninety-five dollars.

Rob stood with his boys out in the road, while the jam of cars, trailers and trucks edged out of the parking places and started on their way home. The man in the bowler hat was with him.

Rob said, "This is Mr. Gilroy. My two boys, Mr. Gilroy, Howard and Ken." The boys shook hands.

"I want you to go home in the bus with Gus—" he stuck his hand in his pocket, brought out some bills, and gave them to Howard. "You'll get home by nine o'clock. Buy some sandwiches and eat them on the bus—you can get them where you take the bus. Over there—"

He pointed, giving Howard precise instructions. "Mr. Gilroy and I are going to have dinner together. I'll bring the truck. Tell your mother not to wait up, I'll be late."

At dinner Rob asked, "Would you tell me what you bought all my horses for? Are they for your own use?"

"No. I bought them for resale."

"Where will you sell them?"

ABRAHAM'S PRACTICE OF BROTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 13:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee . . . for we be brethren.—Genesis 13:8.

As we study the contrasting selfishness of Lot, we see the true generosity of Abram and the brotherly love which prompted it in bold relief. In a world where men reckon even their friendships as something which must yield some financial return, it is good to stress the fact that kindness and sacrifice are recognized and rewarded by God.

Abram, after dwelling for a time in Canaan, had gone down into Egypt because of a famine in his own land. After many trying experiences, he returned to his promised land and there he prospered mightily under the good hand of God. Unlike many who forget God when they become rich, we find Abram

I. Meeting Prosperity With Godliness (vv. 1-4).

Abram "was very rich." That would be almost enough to constitute a spiritual obituary notice for many a man's spiritual life.

But Abram did not let his riches come between him and God. He sought out the altar which he had first built at Bethel, and there he called upon the name of the Lord once again.

Note then, that riches in themselves need not destroy a man's character or spirituality if they are held as a gift from God, and for His glory. Meet growing prosperity with increased godliness and all will be well.

II. Meeting Problems With Kindness (vv. 5-9).

Abram's riches, and those of Lot, were largely in flocks and herds. For them there had to be great areas of grazing land, and in the rocky section where they found themselves, grass was scarce. Result? A fight between the herdsmen.

Lot, the younger, should have taken the lead in meeting that situation, but his selfish heart was too small for that. But Abram, eager for peace and brotherly love, indicated at once his willingness to do anything necessary to preserve peace.

One could not ask a finer indication of true bigness in a man. "Big men use their prestige to serve great ideals. Abram used his tremendous advantage to do a beautifully generous thing to eliminate strife. Not many men are big enough to follow this course" (W. R. White).

Only God can make a man that big, but God can do it for any one of us. If Christian people would listen to the words of Abram, "we are brethren" (v. 8), and put them into practice, there would be an immediate end to all the foolish strife which divides God's people.

There is no call for compromise with untruth, nor any occasion for softhearted generosity which will only spoil its recipients. We are talking about the honest and intelligent use of kindness and tact between brethren. When kindness meets problems, the problems disappear. Why not try it?

III. Meeting Selfishness With Love (vv. 10-12).

Lot made the typical choice of the worldly-minded man, the one which would give him the best returns in dollars and cents. It seemed like a shrewd thing to do, but it resulted in disaster, for it meant pitching his tents over toward the wickedness of Sodom.

Abram had to rescue Lot again and again from the results of his decision; but thus in love he met the arrogant selfishness of his foolish nephew.

God rewarded Abram by a renewal of His covenant with him (Gen. 13:14-18). God understands and values the kind and thoughtful act, even though the world may ignore it or sneer at it.

Lot probably did not intend to go all the way into wicked Sodom to live, but having once started that way, it was easy to go on and on. Even so Christians in our day may not intend to slip off into worldliness, but if they continue to pitch their tents toward Sodom, they will find themselves there one sad day.

This may be done by seeking wealth or worldly advantage at the expense of association with unbelievers, or by some manipulations or maneuvers which will involve compromise. It may come about by reason of indulgence in worldly amusements which dull spiritual perceptions and kill an appetite for the Word of God and prayer.

Abram is a character who "wears" well. We see him meeting one situation after another, and making the right choice. Oh, he was not perfect! His mistakes are noted in Scripture, and he suffered for them, too. But because his heart was fundamentally right, and he had a constant desire to do the will of God, he found his way through, and justified the name which God gave him—"The friend of God" (see James 2:23; Isa. 41:8).

LIKE to crochet the pineapple design? Here's a group of small pieces—just right for a gift—each made of odds and ends of cotton.

Novelties you'll love—crocheted basket, handkerchief case, sachet, pouches, edging and corner. Pattern 732 contains directions.

Ripe tomato juice will remove fresh ink stains.

Yellow ochre dissolved in boiling water makes a lovely dye for muslin curtains.

Sprinkle a stubborn ribbon knot with talcum powder. Unties easier.

When the point of a steel wire brush wears down, saw off the worn end and the brush will be as good as new.

Grease the spout of the pitcher when you use it for muffin or waffle batter. It will make pouring smoother.

When making pies that are likely to be juicy, cut the lower crust larger than the upper and fold over like a hem to prevent leaking at the edges.

Saw off the legs of an old wobbly card table to about 18 inches long, and use it as a play table for the children. It can be moved easily from room to room and taken also on trips.

As soon as you notice frayed or worn spots in garments, mend them. Small holes are easier to hide than large ones and worn spots can be kept from tearing if reinforced with mending in time.

A skillet that has become encrusted with a rough coating which cannot be easily scraped off, may be put into a hot fire or bed of hot coals and the crust burned off. In this way the skillet is left smooth and like new and is not injured.

3 Presidents in Position To Pick Their Successors

Until 1886, a law provided that when the presidency of the United States was left vacant by one who had succeeded to it from the vice presidency, the office was to be assumed temporarily by the president of the senate for the sole purpose of ordering a new election, says Collier's.

Since 1886, when a new law extended the succession to cabinet members beginning with the secretary of state, three Presidents have been in a position to name their successor in case of their death—Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge and Truman.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Although rubber is ordinarily considered non-conductive, B. F. Goodrich has perfected an electrically conductive rubber used in the form of a "shoe" for de-icing airplane propellers.

Bathing suits that won't get wet even when the wearer goes in swimming are a good possibility. The waterproof bathing suits are coated with B. F. Goodrich Koroseal.

"Bullet-proof" tires are so designed that a punctured tire can be run for 40 miles before it is ruined.

Almost every modern weapon has some rubber in it.

New War Year Harvest Gets Underway

With the harvest season already getting underway in some sections of the country farmers are more anxious this war year than ever before because of the shortage of manpower. The above is a glimpse into the postwar harvesting scene when the self-propelled harvester will be in general use. The self-propelled feature on this machine designed by the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company, makes possible the harvest of all crops at lower cost. Unusual engineering development makes the feature adaptable in harvesting all types of grain including rice. It is unfortunate that more of these MM harvesters could not be made for the 1945 harvest.

Lt. Edw. Lauffer
Traveled Much
As A P. W.

By being a prisoner of war, Lt. Edward Lauffer perhaps got to see more of Germany than he would have in his line of duty, for in the capacity of prisoner he was taken by train, and truck, tho mostly by train, and sometimes the crack Berliner, from one camp to another, many miles apart.

First Lt. Edward Lauffer, who is 26 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lauffer of Mokena was inducted into service July 26, 1943 and had one year of training in this country with the army air force, and at the conclusion of that period he was a navigator on a B-17. And when he left this country on October 28, 1944, he flew on a B-17.

They landed November 11 at an air base near Foggia, Italy where his group joined the 301st bomb group of the 15th army air force.

Edward remained at this base until he was taken a prisoner. He is very much in love with his job as a navigator and with flying, as are all those who follow this vocation.

Mrs. Jack Bennett spent Monday visiting her mother Mrs. Stupart in Harvey.

Ruettiger, that he was leaving Germany July 1 for the United States where he is to receive his discharge from the army on the point system. He has been in the army four years.

It was from the Foggia base, that he made fifteen successful missions, all during day time, flying over: Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Italy and Brenner Pass. Each mission consuming eight or nine hours. We say he made fifteen successful missions, even tho it was on his 15th mission, which was Tuesday February 13, that he was shot down.

On this mission he was over their target, which was Vienna, when they were hit by enemy flak when they were at an altitude of 27,000 feet. Their plane was quickly put out of commission, their wing tanks burst into flames, and when they were about 20,000 feet, Lt. Lauffer baled out. He landed on the bank of the Danube river, just missing going into the water. This was about ten miles east of Vienna, near Schwechat, Germany, about noon. The Nazi soldiers were waiting for him and took him by horse and wagon to Parndorf, a German air base where he met two other of his plane crew. They remained twelve days at this base and then were taken, on the Berliner, one of the good German trains, to Leipzig. Here they entrained again, for Frankfurt-on-Main for an interrogation center and remained there for several days of questioning, and Edward said it was not severe.

They entrained again, this time for Nurnberg and from this place they marched 15 days to the Moosburg prison. The weather during all this time of extensive traveling was good as it was the first of April and on the 18th, they arrived at Moosburg. But they were not there very long, as on the 29th of April, they were liberated by the U. S. Armoured division.

The Moosburg camp was about two miles square and among the nationalities of prisoners were: Russians, Americans, French, Zerbis British, Canadians and Australians. Within a week after liberation, they were removed to Ingolstadt, Germany, by plane, which was a reception center and then by train to Camp Lucky Strike, near St. Valey, France and remained there for two weeks.

Their next move was by plane, to Norwich, England, then to Edinburg Scotland, then again by plane to London where they had a pleasant opportunity to tour that city before they sailed on June 20 from South Hampton, England, for the good old homeland, where they arrived June 26, at Boston, Mass. and where they were given a rousing welcome.

It was Saturday June 30, that Lt. Lauffer arrived in Mokena, glad to be home, even tho he is on a 60 day temporary duty schedule. It will be September 1st, when he will again leave Mokena for a recuperation period at Miami Beach, Florida and where he will receive his re-assignment.

Lt. Lauffer, we noticed in our interview, wears the ETOW ribbon

DON'T LEARN THE HARD WAY

If the war has taught the owner of a home anything about domestic problems, it is that an adequate and economical heating plant is about the most important thing in his house, next to the roof. The necessity for saving fuel has forced home owners to recognize this fact and in so doing house is under construction, but it is a costly and often an impossible job house is built it should have a chimney big enough to take care of all types of fuel. It costs little more to build such a chimney when a to enlarge a chimney later.

They have found out a few elemental truths, one of which is that when a The bituminous coal industry, because of shortages in other fuels, has had to heat thousands of homes that never before used coal. It has been pointing out the necessity for proper chimney construction for safety, economy, and freedom from dependency on any one type of fuel. And this is something for home builders to remember in the days ahead when a record breaking era of small home construction is predicted.

Among the guests in the Steve Kozbiel home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Capek and son Ronald of Chicago.

Pfc. Clarence Paulsen left Saturday evening for Davenport, Iowa to visit relatives. Clarence has been a guest this past week in Alpine in the homes of his sisters, Mrs. Bernard Rickerman and Mrs. Frank Hansa. He is enjoying a 60 day furlough following service in Europe.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Stellwagen born last Monday morning in the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet weighed 7 lbs. 4 oz. She has been named Joan Alma. The Stellwagons have two other children Robert and Betty Jean.

The Howard Lembke's and Howard Jr. of Maywood were Monday evening visitors in the Paul Lembke home. Howard Jr. had great fun chasing all the chickens in the orchard and watching them scurry for safety.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swetta and daughter Marjorie are here from Detroit, Mich. and are spending a few days vacation as guests in the Henry Cripps home. Little Marjorie had celebrated her 3rd birthday last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lembke attended a farewell party in Chicago Wednesday evening for their friend Joseph Koss, who entered military service Friday, July 13. Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hendricks, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Durko and Antoinette and Michael, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Rice and daughter Marcella all of Chicago; also Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Padera and sons of Berwyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice and their daughter have recently returned from Pearl Harbor where they were employed when the Japs bombed it Dec. 7, 1941. Mr. Rice was one of the lucky who survived, and helped the Marines bring in 15,000 dead bodies from the ships and other places where they had been killed on that first terrible day of horror and mass murder.

Mrs. Harvey Emerson received a very pleasant surprise last Tuesday evening when her son and his wife Cpl. and Mrs. Vincent Stoner arrived from Vincent's army camp near Alexandria, La. to spend a 15 day furlough with his parents. It was an especially happy occasion since Vincent and Evelyn arrived just in time to help Mrs. Emerson celebrate her birthday July 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooper of La-Grange were guests in the Ralph Stellwagen home Monday.

Mrs. R. F. Dunn and sons left last Thursday to join their husband and father Major Richard F. Dunn, who is stationed at St. Petersburg, Fla. Miss Frances White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erol White accompanied them and they plan to spend the remainder of the summer there. Major Dunn is the well known Dr. Dunn who was an Alpine resident before he entered the service. They especially enjoyed the trip thru the Cumberland mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lembke and grandchildren Carol and Robt. Ross enjoyed a movie in Joliet last Friday evening. Carol and Bob returned to their home in Chicago Sunday after spending an enjoyable week's vacation on their grandfathers farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Anderson and Lavenne attended the Friday evening Pinochle club which met with Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hostert in Mokena.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Janusz of Chicago are staying in the L. Janes home while they are away.

When Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Emerson arrived at their daughter's home in Chicago last Wednesday evening, a lovely surprise awaited them. All the children and their families had arranged to meet there and have a surprise birthday party for their mother Mrs. Emerson. The guest list included Cpl. and Mrs. Vincent Stoner of Alexandria, La. Pfc. and Mrs. John Sanborn and Dorothy Ruth and James, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stoner and son Buddy of Chicago; also Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heinze and sons of Des Plaines, and Mrs. Gordon Clevenger of Alpine. This good neighbor plan helps you—here and now

GOOD fast telephone service is a big help to the farmer and a constant comfort to his family. And good fast service is the rule hereabouts, even on party lines where a number of homes share the use of one set of wires.

Party line subscribers have worked out their own Good Neighbor Policy: KEEP ALL TELEPHONE CALLS REASONABLY BRIEF. TEACH THE CHILDREN TO DO THE SAME. BE CONSIDERATE OF OTHERS AND USE THE LINE "SHARINGLY."

These good habits are especially helpful now—since telephone equipment is in use to capacity and since we can do little in wartime to install new lines or to put fewer families on existing lines. Even so, rural telephone service in this country is better developed than anywhere else in the world.

Our plans have been made to extend telephone lines to reach practically any home in the area we serve, to relieve overcrowding on party lines and to improve the service in other ways. These plans will be carried forward with all possible speed just as soon as materials and manpower are again available.

Meanwhile, let's all try to give the other fellow a break—and put the brake on over-use of the party lines we share with others. Thanks for helping, neighbor!

NO ENEMY BOMBS ON AMERICAN FARMS—

BUT

THERE WERE OVER 17,000
FATALITIES ON THE FARM
FRONT LAST YEAR

Don't Gamble! These safety tips may save you from serious injury—may even save your life!

1. Don't wear loose, floppy clothing working around machinery.

2. Do stop machinery before attempting to make repairs.

3. Don't handle animals unless you know the proper methods.

4. Do put tools away. They'll serve you better—save you trouble.

5. Don't smoke around barns. Farm fires cost $90,000,000 annually.

6. Do apply first aid immediately. Keep a first aid kit handy.

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK JULY 22-28

If you are an inexperienced hand, an older man, or a woman, patriotically helping to fight the battle on the food front, it will be wise to remember that farm work can be dangerous work—that you may suffer a serious injury, or even the loss of life—unless you are careful.

The Careful Farmer's Work Is Healthful, Interesting and Safe! Fortunately, much of the danger in farm work can be eliminated by the individual farm worker. By taking a few simple, precautionary measures—by being careful... you make your very important contribution to the war effort without risk of injury to yourself or others.

Warning! Most farm accidents are traceable to nothing other than carelessness—to "chance-taking." The worker who doesn't bother to "make sure", who "guesses" that he'll be safe enough, is the one who gets seriously injured. It's just good common sense to make safety a year 'round rule so that your life, your farm, and your future will be protected.

EVERYBODY INVITED—

—REFRESHMENTS

SEVERAL old-time ball players have suggested that the public at large should not judge Hank Greenberg in the same light as some of the other ex-servicemen who have returned to make good. Two of those mentioned were Ferriss and Benton.

"Remember," one of these said, "Ferriss and Benton had a chance to play a lot of baseball before they were released from service. Any number of star ball players have been playing on army or navy teams. But Greenberg has played practically no baseball for over four years. That's a long gap. I recall that old Pete Alexander came back from the A.E.F. to keep on going at a winning clip, but old Pete was only out of the game a year or less. It will be remarkable if Hank can start hitting home runs right away. Even close to his old form he could murder a lot of these pitchers now around, but it will take time."

This brings up the old argument again regarding Joe Louis. Joe has been away over three years. But after all he has had the chance to box in a long list of exhibitions for various camps and hospitals. This isn't the same as actual ring fighting, but at least it has given the heavyweight champion a chance to keep his hand in. The same is true of Billy Conn.

They probably won't be what they used to be—but they can still get back into pretty fair boxing and punching form, if they happen to get out before too long.

With the heavy play both army and navy are now making on the side of sport for servicemen in Europe and the Pacific, their chances for any sudden exit are none too warm.

Army and navy have made plans to get all the coaches and trainers they can collect and to build up as many all-star contests as they can find—especially in the way of boxing, baseball and football. These are the three top sports that carry the leading soldier and sailor appeal, although basketball also has a terrific call.

Louis and Conn

I asked Jimmy Johnston, sage of the leather district, how he figured Louis and Conn would go after returning to the ring.

"First of all," he said, "just tell me when they are going to get out. That's important. If it takes much longer I'd say some tough young heavyweight soldier will come along who won't be afraid to tear in and punch. He will also be younger and tougher. No, I don't know who he will be. But with all the boxing training hundreds of thousands of these kids have had, a few of them are sure to learn a lot and to have what it takes."

"Just what does it take?" I asked.

"Very simple," the sage said. "To know how to box, to know how to punch, to be able to take a punch. You see thousands of kids who might have been good fighters never had a chance to get any instruction before. They never had a chance to do any boxing. The big majority had no chance to be a champion, anyway. But there must be many others who are sure to move far up. This goes for every class. Some of our best ring fighters have been teaching thousands of these younger men. It is for this reason that I think we'll get most of our ring champions out of this group."

In this connection a friend of Joe Louis tells me that the heavyweight leader now has his golf game down into the low 70s and expects to hold a big July tournament over one of Detroit's municipal courses. It is much easier to get Louis to talk about golf and the golf swing than it is to lure many words from him about boxing or the heavyweight championship.

Also, Bowman Milligan, manager of Beau Jack, reports that while the lightweight's knee is still bothering him, he is winning camp fights by quick knockouts. Beau Jack's present weight is over 145 pounds so he will have his share of trouble training himself back into the lightweight division.

But it won't be any great trouble in most cases to remove surplus flesh. The big gamble will be what the returning veteran can do with the flesh, bone and sinew he has left, once he is down to weight. And there will be a flock of different answers to this problem.

Al Benton's Case

There is, for instance, the case of Al Benton of the Tigers. Al is 6 feet 4, 238 pounds, age 32. He served two years in the navy. Many people will refer to his record as proof that service in the armed forces does not affect a player's ability, but Benton spent all his time at Norman, Okla., had the position of athletic director, and about all he did was pitch. He had time to improve his curve ball and his slider, his main pitch today is this slider in fact.

Converting Wastes Into Poultry Feed

Vitamin Concentrates From Vegetable Spoils

Vitamins are absolutely necessary for poultry—to baby chicks they are all-essential. Considerable work has been done in order to provide poultry with the elements, either from a vegetable or animal source and rapid improvement has taken place.

The newest source is promised from waste vegetable leaf meal, which has been proven an excellent chick feed supplement, according to results of cooperative research between the U.S.D.A. and the Delaware agricultural experiment station.

Chicks Started With Farm Waste.

The experiment was undertaken to find uses for the large tonnage of waste leaves in the production and processing of vegetable crops. It showed that the blade portions of the leaves are high in protein, carotene and riboflavin, all of which are needed in poultry feeds. Some were so rich in carotene, or vitamin A, that they have become sources of raw material for vitamin concentrates.

The scientists have processed large quantities of both field and packing house vegetable wastes. They utilized the waste leaves of broccoli, beets, spinach, turnips, carrots and lima bean vines, and from all excellent sources of poultry feed.

Saw for Barn Scraper

An efficient scraper for the barn floor can be made of an old cross-cut saw. The scraper may also be used in poultry houses and on roosts.

Braces should be run from the saw on either side to the handle, at an angle shown in the illustration. If steel rods are not available, heavy wire may be used.

Agriculture In the News W. J. DRYDEN

Apples

The milk of the apple is being made into medicine and candy. This process was developed in Virginia from apple pulp.

The use of apple syrup in tobacco, as a glycerin substitute, has been well advertised. Other uses have also been found for the syrup.

By the fermentation of the expressed juice of the apple, an alcoholic beverage is produced from apples.

It takes, on the average, a bushel of apples to produce three gallons of cider. It is now possible to secure concentrated cider.

The pulp, after juice has been extracted, has a definite feeding value equal to corn silage for cattle.

Treacle, made from apples, can replace 50 per cent of sugar usually employed in making preserves. A good quality vinegar is also produced from apples. Other uses of apple products are: supplement to grain flour products, apple wax used in lubricants, and apple seed oil.

Early Chick Feeding

As soon as baby chicks are placed in the brooder house, they should be fed, and taught to eat, otherwise they may eat part of the litter and die. While a sand litter is excellent, the crop full of sand will not result in chick growth or in health.

The first few days it would be well to place the feed on a cardboard. After four or five days, hoppers, which prevent the chicks from getting into the feed, should be substituted.

NO MORE SISTER SUSIE'S SOCKS

Civilian consumers will benefit in the postwar period for a number of wartime discoveries by army chemists and researchers. Not only will they have synthetic soups and self-heating cocoa to use on camping trips, but they will find that they can purchase such things as shrink-proof woolen socks. The days when "the socks of sisters raised the blooming blisters have been banished forever in the army."

All army socks are now shrink-proofed, and efforts are being made to apply the same treatment to all types of wool cloth.

A new synthetic cloth has also been developed which can be rolled up into a ball and will rebound from a wall with the force of a rubber ball. If allowed to remain on a level surface for a quarter of an hour, however, the material will flatten out completely. The fiber wears extremely well, but the difficulty still to be worked out is that it will not stand more than 15 to 20 launderings.

CAPITAL CHAFF

In view of the lumber shortage and the terrific wartime destruction of forests in the South and Northwest, a drive has started for a renewal of the Civilian Conservation Corps after the war. This may be the answer to conscription.

While old-fashioned brass hats talk about a big land army after the war, General Bayerlein, commander of the Panzer Lehr division, now a prisoner, has given some interesting information to U. S. officers abroad. He reports that if the U. S. army had stepped up tactical air warfare last August, after our breakthrough into France, we could have won the war sooner. At that time, U. S. planes were bombing German factories but not concentrating heavily on tactical bombing—in other words bombing of enemy troops. . . . Wonder what the effect would be if the new goop bomb, which spreads unquenchable fire in every direction, were dropped wholesale on Jap troops in action?

U. S. and Franco's Radio

Top officials of OWI are seriously considering using the American taxpayers' money to buy time on Franco's Spanish radio network.

Up until recently, OWI was broadcasting over the Rabat, North African, station, which is French, in order to reach the Spanish people. According to OWI executive Thurman Barnard, "several programs a day carrying the American story are broadcast to the Spanish people."

But despite the recent action of the San Francisco conference in flatly vetoing the admission of Fascist Spain into the United Nations, OWI is considering a radio hookup over Franco's government-owned network.

BOOST IN COFFEE PRICES?

A debate has been raging inside the government over the price of coffee, which this time may be boosted.

Chief problem is that Brazil, our biggest coffee shipper and our best friend in Latin America, is finding it so uneconomical to grow coffee that she is turning to cotton. In that case she would be our chief competitor instead of our chief customer.

Labor costs in Brazil have risen to such an extent that Brazilian coffee growers can't produce at the OPA ceiling price which averages around 13 cents a pound. They want the price boosted to an average of 18 cents a pound. This would increase the cost of a cup of coffee one-eighth of a cent.

The state department favors such a price rise. The OPA, anxious to hold the line, is opposed.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico has been sitting on the anti-poll tax bill until the San Francisco United Nations charter is out of the way. He does not want a poll-tax filibuster to upset ratification of the charter.

Portright Fred Vinson, the war mobilizer, is going to be put on the spot soon by the Surplus War Property board. It is about to hatch a ruling whereby 11 billion dollars of government-owned war plants and machinery would be sold merely on the basis of price, not on the basis of where they could stimulate business and competition. . . . If the Surplus board has its way, war plants, machinery, etc., will go to the DuPonts, General Motors, Ford, and others with the most cash to buy them.

Unsung heroes of the airplane carrier Franklin's rescue were Capt. John Gingrich, skipper of the cruiser Pittsburgh, and his executive officer, Ed Rivers. Capt. Leslie Gehres of the Franklin expressed astonishment that the Pittsburgh kept its towline on the burning airplane carrier with Jap suicides hitting at both. . . . The answer is that for over 37 hours, Gingrich remained on the bridge, with Rivers assigned to the fantail to watch the towline. Neither had a moment's sleep during those 37 hours.

Kite That Climbs, Dives, Loops Army, Navy Target

A unique type of kite is used by the army and navy as a target to train their AA gunners because it can be made to climb, dive, bank, loop, do figure eights and all other maneuvers of an airplane so quickly that it is rarely hit by more than one out of 50 shots.

Of traditional shape, without a tail and only five feet in both height and width, the kite is controlled through two lines that operate its rudder and other parts.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache; persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
